

Dear Hiring Team,

I am Zehra Mina Sarioğlu, a third-year Graphic Design student at Bilkent University with a growing focus on visual storytelling, creative direction, and UI/UX design. My work is shaped by an interest in how design can create atmosphere, communicate emotion, and transform ideas into memorable visual experiences.

Throughout my education, I have explored different areas of design including branding, editorial design, motion graphics, interface design, and conceptual visual systems. In each project, I try to build a strong narrative structure: not only designing how something looks, but also how it feels, moves, and connects with its audience.

This portfolio presents selected works that reflect my approach to design as both a visual and strategic practice. From digital experiences to printed compositions, my projects are guided by research, experimentation, and attention to detail. I am especially interested in creating refined, experience-driven design systems that balance conceptual depth with clear visual communication.

I see design as a way of telling stories, shaping perception, and building meaningful connections between people and ideas. With this portfolio, I aim to present who I am as a designer, how I think, and how my visual language continues to develop.

Sincerely,
Zehra Mina Sarioğlu
